

Union Home Minister and Minister of Cooperation, Shri Amit Shah, visits New Delhi World Book Fair

The Home Minister also visited the Vande Mataram pavilion and 'Operation Sindoor' Pavilion

Books are the best medium to gain knowledge, and one should continue to read regardless of their age

Distributed copies of Bankim Chandra Chattopadhyay's 'Anand Math' to children to light their minds with the dreams of our freedom fighters

'Anand Math' created history by inspiring millions of Indians to wage the freedom struggle and end British rule

Vande Mataram pavilion showcases the glorious saga of our national song, which stirred freedom fighters with the patriotic fervor to overthrow the colonial rule

Home Minister also visited the exhibition on the life and contributions of Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel

By celebrating the 150th birth anniversary of Sardar Saheb, who united the country that was divided into pieces and built One India, the Modi government is making his great personality and monumental achievements immortal in the new generation

This exhibition will further strengthen the resolve among youth to protect the country and its unity

‘Operation Sindoor’ was a testament to India's invincible military might powered by PM Modi Ji's resolute political will, decisive striking power of our armed forces and precision intelligence

‘Operation Sindoor’ Pavilion inspires young generation with patriotism and commitment to the nation

The habit of reading is fast waning; books, whether in digital or print, are still the best way to acquire knowledge
